

Music and Lyrics
By James A. White

She's Probably On The Parkway

She's probably on the Parkway now, around exit 105
She hasn't known him very long
But he must be worth the drive
My heart hears her I love you's call
But my head knows very well, that

CHORUS

She's probably on the Parkway now
She must be on the Parkway now
She's surely on the Parkway now
Just as sure as I'm in hell

She's probably on the Parkway now,
Cause she can't stand suspense
She's so afraid that love must die,
She kills in self defense
I can almost see the Belmar sign
Asbury Park as well

CHORUS

She's just a frightened girl, I know, who wants to run away
I know she really loves me cause she's so afraid to stay
She thinks a token lover, will make me leave her flat
And justify her deepest fears
And I'm afraid, that it just might, at that

She's probably off the Parkway now, stepping foot aboard his ship
She won't be coming back tonight, cause it's just too long a trip
I won't sleep at all tonight,
And in the morning not too well

She'll be on the Parkway then
Heading North-back again
She'll be on the Parkway then
I'll still be here in hell
Oh I'll still be here
In hell